KANAZAWA

Once the castle town for the wealthy Kaga feudal clan, Kanazawa continues to fascinate us while exuding a harmonious blend of bygone-day splendors and modern-day trendiness.

Higashi Chaya District
 This time-honored entertainment quarter features quaint rows of "chaya" (teahouses), which is reminiscent of Kanazawa's rich cultural traditions as a prosperous castle town. As night falls and lamps begin to come aglow, even today you can overhear sounds of traditional "shamisen" string instruments and drums from within the "chaya" teahouses.

Kenroku-en Garden
 This exquisite, large-scale Japanese garden is renowned for its seasonally changing elements of beauty such as numerous "yukitsuri" (poles from which ropes extend to support branches to keep the tree from breaking under the weight of snow) in winter and the plum garden graced with red and white blossoms in the early spring.

Kanazawa Castle Park
 This urban park was created by reforming the Kanazawa Castle site. It contains reconstructed wooden castle structures of historical value such as "Gojūken Nagaya" weapon storehouse/castle wall, "Hishi Yagura" turret and "Hashizume-mon Tsuzuki Yagura" turret.

D.T. Suzuki Museum
 This facility was built in honor of Daisetsu Suzuki, a native of Kanazawa and a world-famous Buddhist philosopher, to introduce his thoughts and achievements. The place, where visitors can contemplate on their own, was designed by Mr. Yoshio Taniguchi, an architect of international fame.

21st Century Museum of Contemporary Art, Kanazawa
 Created under the architectural concept "an urban park-like art museum open to the public," this museum is designed to be a "venue for casual encounters" allowing anyone to drop by when they feel like it.

NAGANO

The city of Nagano is packed with attractions that allow visitors to experience Japanese cultural heritage. Zenkoji Temple's main hall is designated a National Treasure, the Matsushiro district offering a variety of Japanese cultural experiences, and Togakushi which is a 2000-year-old religious center of mountain asceticism.

Zenkoji Temple
 Reconstructed in 1707, the main hall of this highly revered temple is the fourth largest wooden structure in Japan and is designated a National Treasure.

Shojin Ryori (Buddhist vegetarian cuisine)
 Zenkoji Temple contains a total of 39 lodging facilities called "shukubo" each belonging to a priest-operated sub-temple. Shukubo offer a variety of elaborate Japanese dishes, notably "shojin ryori" or Buddhist vegetarian cuisine.

Strolling around Togakushi Shrine Precinct
 Built at the foot of sacred Mt. Togakushi, this Shinto shrine complex boasts a history stretching over 2000 years. The two-kilometer-long main approach leading to the Inner Shrine is flanked with huge 400-year-old cedar trees.

Togakushi-School Ninjutsu Experience
 The Togakushi-school of "ninjutsu" (ninja art) has a history close to 800 years old. Attractions such as Togakushi Folklore Museum, Togakushi-School Nimpo Museum, Ninja Karakuri Yashiki (ninja house) and the Kids' Ninja Village allow visitors to experience some of the Togakushi-School ninjutsu traditions.

Matsushiro
 The Matsushiro district pleases visitors with various programs to experience Japanese cultural traditions, such as the fan-throwing game, "zazen" meditation, wearing kimono or samurai armor, ancient martial arts, and rickshaw ride.

GOKAYAMA, NANTO

Comprised of hamlets with traditional farmhouses of the thatched "Gassho-zukuri" style, Gokayama retains the genuine rural landscape of Japan. Highly hospitable local folks always extend a hearty welcome to visitors.

"Kokiriko" Dancing
 "Kokiriko-bushi," handed down in the Gokayama district that contains a village of "Gassho-zukuri"-style farmhouses (a World Cultural Heritage site), is believed to be the oldest folk song in Japan. Dancers in ancient costumes dance to the song elegantly and in well-defined movements while sounding the percussion-type "sasara" bamboo whisk instrument. This performance enchants everyone who sees it.

Johana Hikiyama Float Festival, UNESCO Intangible Cultural Heritage
 Dedicated to the deities of Johana Shinmeigu Shrine, this float parade festival adds springtime splendors to the town of Johana which is also known as the Little Kyoto of Etchu (ancient provincial name of Toyama).

Zuisenji Temple
 Zuisenji Temple boasts the largest Buddhist temple structure in the Hokuriku region. It is also famous as the birthplace of marvelous Inami wood-carving.

SHIRAKAWA-GO

Nestling in a nature-rich mountain nook, the peaceful hamlet of Shirakawa-go (in Shirakawa Village) is famous for its "Gassho-zukuri"-style farmhouses and is collectively registered as a World Cultural Heritage site. It exudes the genuine rural atmosphere of Japan.

Gassho-zukuri Minkaen
 This outdoor museum allows visitors to experience the traditional lifestyle of Shirakawa-go. A total of 25 "Gassho-zukuri" farmhouses are open to visitors, which include restaurants, resting places, teahouses and an exhibition hall featuring traditional folk articles.

Wada House (National Important Cultural Property)
 This impressive "Gassho-zukuri" farmhouse is said to date back to the mid-Edo Period (approx. 300 years ago). The Wadas are a long-standing family of honorable lineage who had long served as the guardhouse administrator.

Oshirakawa Park, Hakusan National Park
 The centerpiece of this virgin forest is the pristine Lake Hakusui of emerald-green water, surrounded by huge beech and Mongolian oak trees. Another attraction is the 72-meter-high Hakusui Waterfall. Together they all form a magnificent slice of nature.

TAKAYAMA

Takayama City is proud of its three quaint streets of old: the Kamimachi district (including the former castle town center and merchant town) and the Shimomachi district, collectively rated with Three Stars. Also enjoy a fantastic ropeway ride above the clouds as well as the prized Hida beef taste treat.

Shin-Hotaka Ropeway
 Enjoy a fantastic ropeway trip above the clouds on a two-story gondola, the only one of its kind in Japan. At an elevation of 2,156 meters, you can feast your eyes with grand views of nature offering breathtaking seasonal beauty.

Miyagawa Morning Market
 There are two morning markets, one at the Jinya-mae plaza and the other along the Miyagawa River. You can buy fresh vegetables, fruit and flowers of the season, and much more. Friendly encounters with local vendors who speak the pure Takayama dialect enhance the pleasure of shopping.

Hida Beef
 Japanese Black cattle fattened for more than 14 months within Gifu Prefecture and their beef graded 5, 4, or 3 deserve the appellation "Hida Beef." Hida Beef is truly exquisite in both quality and taste.

MATSUMOTO

Matsumoto City is proud of Matsumoto Castle (a National Treasure) and is the gateway to Kamikochi renowned for its alpine scenic splendors. Matsumoto is rich in seasonal natural attractions as well as historical and cultural attractions. Numerous welling springs that can be found around the town enhance the atmosphere.

Kamikochi
 Located at the upper reaches of the Azusa River at 1,500 meters above sea level, Kamikochi is one of the superior alpine scenic delights in Japan. Feast your eyes with the seasonally changing beauty of nature.

Matsumoto Castle, a National Treasure
 Weathering over four centuries, its five-tiered, six-story castle tower, built in the late Warring-States-Period (1593 ~ 1594), soars high along with five turrets. The castle as a whole exemplifies Japan's superb castle-building technology of those early days.

Nakamachi Street
 This shopping street retains numerous traditional Japanese warehouse structures characterized by white walls crisscrossed by raised black tiles. Together they exude a castle town-like atmosphere. Enjoy a stroll along this quaint street dotted with folk craft as well as fashionable craft shops.
